

Eighty Five Seasons

Mac Bryla

Fifteen portraits from data

8 – 31 October

Opening Event: Wednesday 14 October, 6pm – 8pm

Every portrait needs a subject. Every subject tells a story. Here, global temperature tells its story across 31,046 daily readings from 1941 to 2025.

“I build the tools to create these images. The toolmaking is as much a part of the process as the experimenting that follows. I start with data as the raw material, something recorded from the real world, and turn it into something else entirely. No images are generated by AI.” – Mac Bryla

Every work is printed on Hahnemühle Museum Etching, a 350 gsm, 100% cotton archival fine art paper, and mounted on Alupanel, ready to hang.
